AFESA Ethics Subcommittee Spotlight / Member

Rob Frampton | Fire Chief, Salisbury Fire Department (MD)

How did you find the fire service? I found the fire service while in college. Actually, I found it much younger growing up in a family that had several members of our local volunteer department. I was too young to join until college, but once I joined, I was hooked! Twenty-six years later, I now serve as the twenty-fourth Fire Chief for the SFD.

How did you find the AFESA? I met Jessica LeBlanc at Fairfax County's 1st National Capital Region Data Analysts Symposium. After that event, several of us came together to discuss ways that we could better advocate for Data Analysts in the Fire & Emergency Services world. Out of many meetings and discussions, AFESA was born.

What do you hope for the AFESA/Ethics Subcommittee? I hope that the Ethics Committee never needs to make a ruling or decision on any matter with regards to AFESA. I hope that the level of integrity, honesty, and trust among Fire & Emergency Services Analysts is such that the Code of Conduct never needs to be applied and simply collects dust.

Fun fact! I enjoy fishing, hunting, and travelling. My wife and I have been to places such as Iceland, Italy, and South Africa. We even saw the Big 5 on our African Safari.
